@mindterrorist If we can prevent deaths with a simple vaccine, we should do it. Last I heard there was no simple solution to murders.

Following only 1 and almost every one of his ~1000K tweets to promote vaccines? Sounds legit & not at all a paid propagandist. ---

@WisdomsGrave @mindterrorist 50% of cervical cancer in the US is in women who missed screenings. Vaccine can prevent a lot of those cases.

@dkegel That was an italicized opinion to prologue ONE article, not a central point, but very selective of you. @mindterrorist

@WisdomsGrave @mindterrorist I have read it. Next point: "44 girls are officially known to have died from these vaccines" (1/2)

@WisdomsGrave @mindterrorist Not true. See hpv.kegel.com/safety/vaers-2... Death report in VAERS does not mean "officially known to have died."

@WisdomsGrave @mindterrorist The vaccine has been proven safe, not just by mfr, but also independent studies. See hpv.kegel.com/safety/
